

WEALTH CREATION

WORKSHEET

As a trade business owner you are in an enviable position to really leverage your profits to secure your future, to become a multi-millionaire, a property investor, an investor and much more.

The word wealth seems like a dirty word within the trade industries and I can only put that down to a working class mindset.

Before I continue there is nothing wrong with working class (just putting that out there) and I come from a working class background meaning my family (and me for a long time) was required to 'work' to 'live' and I also believe in a classless society. King Charles is no better than me and you and vice versa.

Nevertheless if we are working to live we are always going to be a slave to our job or our business and without a clear plan and/or an investment plan this is never going to change.

Wouldn't a world where you make money when you sleep, have a future that is secure (and wealthy) and have no concerns about money or your future EVER be a more 'comfortable' place?

Money doesn't make you happy I can absolutely agree with this but I know being skint or being forced to do a job you want to do makes you unhappy most of the time.... (I do know skint people who appear very happy though!)

Here are a few ways to begin the process of becoming wealthy with a secure future and how you can leverage the profits from a trade business to make it very very tax efficient....

Property Investment

Arguably one of the safest and robust ways to make money long term is property. Historically property has risen in value pretty much year on year and even in years of depression/recessions property has still always went up in value albeit slower. Leveraging your profits from your business into a property company is a tax efficient way to do this. You would do this via an inter company loan meaning far less corporation tax for your limited company.

Investing

Saving accounts are 'ok' from an accountability perspective (you generally don't spend it if it's in a savings account) however no savings account can grow larger than inflation therefore you are always going to be behind.

Example - If everything such as shopping, council tax etc is going UP (inflation) by say 7% and your savings account is returning you a rate of 5% you are effectively going backwards, you are losing money

However having a savings account restricts you from buying that new jumper (out of your savings) therefore it can still be an effective way to grow your wealth but know that it will always be under the rate of inflation.

The S&P500 for example is an investment that historically has almost always been higher than inflation (between 8-12%) and is a secure way to constantly grow your wealth. The S&P 500 is a collection of 500 US companies (such as Apple, Coca Cola, Morgans etc) therefore IF the shares in technology (Apple) were to go down you can be sure an alternative to technology will be going up.

Example - If the government banned alcohol the shares would go down (so would your investment) however the shares in coca cola would go up - Make sense? or if Apple break a rule and are diminished Android shares would go through the roof and so on....

Investing from a working class mindset seems a distant consideration - I get that however it doesn't have to be and by simply adding a few hundred pounds per month (from personal account) can result in huge compounding results over 10-15 years (10-15 years is NOT that far away guys!)

Crypto

I honestly am not a fan of crypto so can't comment to much, I know it is crazy volatile and recently I invested £100,000 in a demo account (to trial it) and lost £18,000 within 48 hours. I just checked this as I was typing this and that £18,000 is now £15,000 so it's rising again. IF you have money you are 'ok to lose' then crypto is a serious and worthwhile risk but know that it is crazy volatile and it is going to require serious mental strength to stick with it. I have mates and clients who are doing very well with it.

Again IF you have a few thousand you are comfortable losing then it's worth a go - personally I am not comfortable losing any money and I am a fairly 'safe' investor therefore it's not for me.

Pensions

Pensions get a bad rap especially in the UK however there is no doubt (similar to savings) that it is a steady way to grow your future wealth/security. On top of this it is arguably the BEST way to save on tax. You can invest £60,000 per year literally tax free from your business (per director) meaning that is £60,000 LESS corporation tax (profit tax) you need to pay HMRC at end of the year. Overall Pensions are a great way to save on tax and an 'ok' way to save for the future - it's a GOOD investment mainly because of huge tax savings but also due to compounding interests.

SIPP Pensions

A Self-Invested Personal Pension (SIPP) is a type of pension that allows you to choose how and where your money is invested. SIPPs are a tax-efficient way to save for retirement. It is more complicated than pensions and does normally come with fees.

A SIPP offers you control and flexibility. You have the final word over how much of your money goes into your pot in the first place and, because there's usually a wider range of investment options, how and where it's invested. This means when the markets are riding high, you could get more return on your investments.

Whisky!

As a Scotsman I should probably have invested in one of our largest exports, Whisky historically has always been a fantastic investment, You can start from as little as £1,000 and they are held within distilleries for years, Investing in whisky casks involves purchasing newly distilled whisky, stored in oak barrels, and allowing it to mature over time. Unlike bottled whisky, which is ready for immediate consumption, cask whisky continues to age, often improving in quality and increasing in value. I should probably look into this from nostalgia purposes alone but also because of the investment opportunity which sits around the 12% mark.....Why haven't I done this!

As you can see there is a investment for dummies guide to leveraging your profits (more on this below) and leveraging your trade business to make YOU more money over time. Some of the above investments can be 'directly' purchased or borrowed from your business and some (such as whisky and S&P) must be purchased from your personal bank account (probably meaning you will have to extract the money from the business into your personal meaning corporation tax and personal/dividend tax)

How to find the money to invest in the above.....

Let's face it, if you are making £500-£1,000 per week and your personal bills are £400-800 per week you don't have a massive amount of money to invest and even if you did with such low numbers it is going to take you a while to see any real return (note - it is still worth doing) therefore we need to get your profits UP.

This is where I come in!

Not only will I discuss and support you with ALL of the above and more at the right time but firstly I will utilise my decades of experience in sales, marketing, lead generation, business management, financial management and of course business coaching and show you multiple ways to increase your profits, leverage your profits, build a better more professional business that runs without YOU in it enabling you to focus on your future investments - as above!

STEP 1: SHIFT YOUR MINDSET

The word "wealth" might seem intimidating or even out of reach, especially if you've grown up with a working-class background. But creating wealth is not about where you're from—it's about where you're headed.

Think about this:

- How would your life improve if your money worked for you, even while you slept?
- How would it feel to never worry about money again and have a secure future?

Write down your vision for a wealthy future:

- What does financial security mean to you?
- What goals would you achieve if money wasn't a concern?

STEP 2: EXPLORE YOUR INVESTMENT OPTIONS

Here are some key ways you can use your trade business profits to build wealth:

01.

Property Investment

One of the safest long-term strategies. Historically, property values rise year after year. Leveraging your business profits into a property company through an inter-company loan is also a tax-efficient way to grow your wealth.

Your Action Step: Research properties in your area. Write down potential locations and property types (e.g., buy-to-let, commercial).

02.

Investing in Stocks (e.g., S&P 500)

Investing in the S&P 500—a collection of 500 of the largest US companies—offers consistent returns of 8-12% annually. Over time, small monthly contributions can compound into significant wealth.

Your Action Step: Consider opening a Stocks & Shares ISA or a general investment account. Write down how much you can contribute monthly:

Contribution goal: £___ per month

03.

Pensions (Including SIPPs)

Pensions are great for tax savings. You can invest up to £60,000 annually per director, tax-free, from your business profits. SIPPs offer more flexibility for investment choices.

Your Action Step: Research pension providers or speak with a financial advisor.

04.

Alternative Investments (e.g., Whisky)

Investing in whisky casks has historically offered 12% annual returns. It's a niche but potentially profitable option to diversify your investments.

Your Action Step: Look into whisky investment companies. Write down your thoughts:

- Would you consider alternative investments? Yes / No

STEP 3: START SMALL BUT STAY CONSISTENT

Example:

- Investing £500/month in the S&P 500 for 15 years could grow into over £170,000 (assuming 8% annual growth).
- Adding property investment could multiply your wealth even faster.

Your Action Step: Write down one small step you can take this month to start investing:

STEP 4: LEVERAGE YOUR TRADE BUSINESS PROFITS

Your business is your greatest wealth-building tool. To maximize its potential:

- 1 Increase profits through better pricing, efficient operations, and improved marketing.
- 2 Free up time by building systems that allow the business to run without you.
- 3 Use your profits to reinvest into wealth-building opportunities.

Write down one way you could increase your business profits this month:

STEP 5: CREATE YOUR WEALTH PLAN

Use this section to summarize your plan:

1 Immediate Goals (next 3 months):

2 Mid-Term Goals (3-5 years):

3 Long-Term Goals (10+ years):

FINAL THOUGHTS

Wealth creation is about taking consistent, small steps toward a bigger future. The earlier you start, the greater the rewards. And remember, you don't have to do it alone —I'm here to guide you every step of the way.
